ELLA ROSENKRANZ

Project Manager

erosenkranz@speckdempsey.com

Ella Rosenkranz is an urban planner dedicated to shaping a more sustainable, livable, and healthy built environment. With professional consulting experience in sustainable mobility and transportation planning, she has served clients at a variety of scales, including local, regional, state, and federal agencies like the New York State Department of Transportation, the Federal Transit Administration, MPOs like the East-West Gateway Council of Governments, Fairfax County Department of Transportation, and more. She holds a master's in urban planning from Harvard University Graduate School of Design, where she specialized in environment, climate, health, and urban design coursework. Her bachelor's degree from Washington University in St. Louis is in environmental policy, where she focused on environmental justice and the business of social impact. Originally from Westchester, NY, Ella is bilingual in Spanish with her extended family in Buenos Aires, Argentina. She has over 20 years of dance training in classical ballet, modern, jazz, and hip-hop, and you can often find her on a nature walk outdoors.

Select project experience includes work completed as a member of ICF Consulting.
